

antennae

What's in the air this month, edited by Nathalie Wilson

1 Kuball & Kempe's client list is a who's who of German luxury-goods manufacturers; it includes Fürstenberg, KPM Berlin and Meissen. And now, with its 'Pop Art Flame' chandeliers (from £4,016 approx), the duo has reinterpreted Flemish models in the archive of the equally grand Leuchten-Manufactur 1862. They're handmade in three sizes and five colourways. Ring 00 49 3425 9051 927, or visit leuchten-manufactur.com.

2 If you raise a glass to Mario Luca Giusti, be sure it's plastic: that's the material favoured by the Italian tableware manufacturer. Shown clockwise from top: 'Gioconda' trays (from £68 approx each), 'Dolce Vita' (£11 approx) and 'Victoria & Albert' (£18 approx per pair). Ring 00 39 055 7323541, or visit mariolucagiusti.com.

3 Maison Fey's embossed cardboard panels are just the job if your pockets aren't deep enough for Cordoba leather – the real McCoy – which the Paris-based company also makes. 'BG' is just one of around 30, mainly 19th-century, patterns available; from £11 approx per 41.4 x 71.5cm panel for single-pattern orders of over a hundred pieces. Ring 00 33 1 43 41 22 22, or visit maisonfey.com.

4 Fashion retailer yoox.com's recent forays into the art world have resulted in, among other things, this limited-edition boxed set of six table mats (£360) featuring copies of Grayson Perry's 'The Vanity of Small Differences' tapestries, in which the artist explores taste, style and class. Ring 0800 046 3688, or visit yoox.com.

5 If Claudio Silvestrin is at the minimalist end of Italy's design spectrum, Colombo Stile, which has been making furniture since 1886, is at the other. Its latest offerings include this 17th-century-style console (from £46,609) and 18th-century-style centre table (from £50,013). Their bases are made of handcrafted wood and 24ct gold leaf, their tops of malachite. Ring 00 39 0362 3491, or visit colombostile.com.